

Further Reading

The Structure of Chinese Characters

The structure of Chinese characters describes the pattern or rule of forming individual Chinese characters. These structures can be categorized into two large groups namely single component structure and compound component structure. The compound component structure is further divided into the left-right structure, left-middle-right structure, up- down structure, up-middle- down structure e.t.c.